This would seem to be a very simple way out of the difficulty, but there is a seriour obstacle to any such settlement. There is a marked feeling of antagonism exhing between the State Board of Charities, controlled by William Rhinelander Stewart, and the State Aid Society, presided over by Joseph Choate, who is said to be responsible for the new law.

The members of the State Board are of the opinion that they should not have put upon them the extra work entailed by the report in question, and in fact will refuse to make it.

Comptroller Fitch said to day that the law was clear on the subject and that he should not pay out one cent to the charitable institutions until the law was compiled with

MISTAKES IN PAY-ROLLS.

Fitch Says Waring's Clerks Are Responsible for Delay.

There is war between the Comptroller's Office and Street-Cleaning Commissioner Waring. It is all over the delay in paying off the several hundred extra snow shovellers who have been recently clainoring for their money. Comptroller Fitch is tired of being Comptroller Fitch is tired of beings blamed for the delay, and said to-day that the fault lies in Col. Waring's office.

"The pay-rolls," said he, "do not reach my office until ten days after the work is done, and almost simultaneously with their receipt at this office comes a crowd of a hundred or more street cleaners to ask for their money. The men say that they are sent here by Deputy Commissioner Moore.

"The real reason for the delay in paying the men is the wretched condition of the pay-rolls received from the office of the Street-Cleaning Department. They are so full of errors that I simply have to send them back to Col. Waring for correction. There are errors in addition and all sorts of other mistakes, which, under the law, I can't correct in my office."

The Comptroller said that such a state of things never before existed to his knowledge. He has written a personal letter to Col. Waring asking him to see to it that the pay-rolls are more carefully made up.

The monthly report of the Comptroller for February, shows that on Jan. 15 the street-Cleaning Department was $86,520 per annum.

Commissioner Waring, by abolishing useless positions and consolidating the work has reduced the rol. to $32,720 per annum, thus making a saving of $12,800 a year to the taxpayers.

The Commissioner has issued a letter to be sent to the property-owners, between 100 East Thirty-eighth street, asking that they co-operate with him in the experiment of moving ashes and garbage in tied sacks.
